Romney: A Reckoning

McKay Coppins, The Atlantic (Reliability 39.29, Bias -9.18)

Romney stated that he was “shocked” about being portrayed as the villain, by the very same people that once championed him as their leader, worthy of the highest office in the land.

Romney also wondered if the internal competition between Sean Hannity and ratings leader Tucker Carlson had something to do with Hannity’s sudden turn on Romney:

“I can only imagine that Sean is consumed with Tucker Carlson being ahead of him, and his everyday effort is to find ways to reclaim the throne as the most watched. He’s in the same vein as Tucker. Just not as effective as Tucker — Tucker’s smart.”

But in Vanity Fair, we also learned that the book goes on to say that Lou Dobbs is “a moron,” and that Fox News is his “enabler.”

Sen Romney goes on to say about:

Ron DeSantis

“no warmth at all” & “looks like he has a toothache”

Newt Gingrich

“A smug know-it-all” and “Too pleased with himself.”

Mike Huckabee

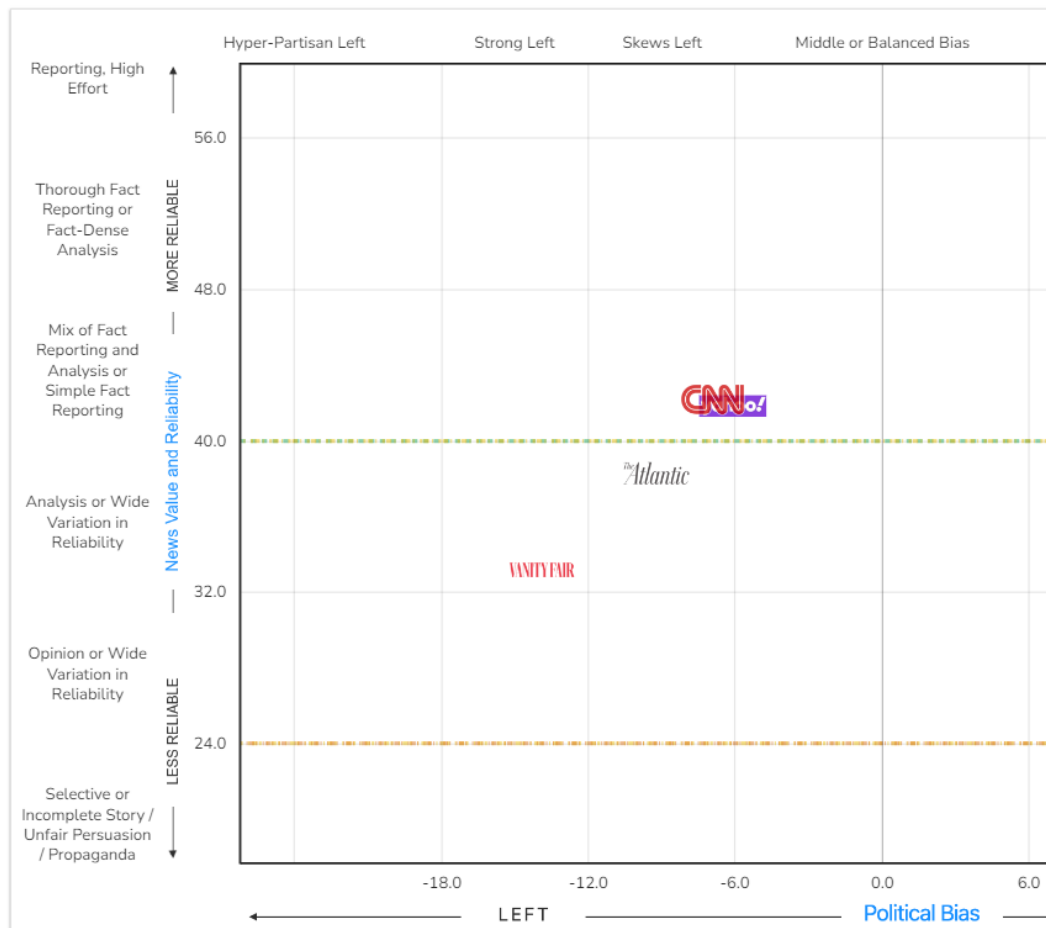

“a caricature of a for-profit preacher”

Rick Santorum

“Severe and strange”
